

THE PALM COURT

Where the echoes of the 1920s still linger, Palm Court celebrates 100 years of Art Deco with timeless style reimagined for today's guest. Built in 1927 by Sir Bracewell Smith, The Park Lane Hotel was a marvel of its time, featuring a pioneering "birdcage" steel structure. The refreshed design is inspired by the iconic textiles of Marion Dorn, a key figure in London's Art Deco history whose work in landmarks like Eltham Palace and Luxury Hotels helped shape the city's design heritage while the colour palette takes cues from the marble of our historic Silver Gallery.

Afternoon Tea at Palm Court pays tribute to this legacy, with flavour and design crafted to delight in every bite.

AFTERNOON TEA

A Brief History

Afternoon Tea is recognised around the world as a quintessentially British tradition. The exact origins of the Afternoon Tea are unknown, but one lady features predominantly in all theories; born in 1783, Anna, Seventh Duchess of Bedford, lady-in-waiting to Her Majesty, Queen Victoria.

Traditionally, dinner was not served until 8:30pm or 9:00pm in the evening and the Duchess often became hungry, especially in the summer when dinner was served even later. Every afternoon, she experienced a “sinking feeling” and requested sandwiches and cakes between 3pm and 4pm in the afternoon.

Soon others followed the Duchess’ lead. In 1842, a well known actress named Fanny Kemble heard of Afternoon Tea, and began to invite some guests to join her. Soon all of fashionable London was sipping tea with a variety of sandwiches on the side. The custom of “taking tea” in the afternoon had become well established, along with a complex set of rules and etiquette.
