

THE HISTORY OF AFTERNOON TEA AT HARRODS

Few traditions are more quintessentially British than afternoon tea – except, perhaps, tea at The Georgian, where we've elevated this ritual to an art form.

Since opening in 1911 as London's largest restaurant, seating 1,200 guests, The Georgian has always set the standard for elegance and sophistication. From the vibrant dances of the Roaring Twenties, where fashion and flair reigned, to the exclusive teas sourced from the world's finest estates.

Today, we are thrilled to welcome you to The Georgian restaurant, now more majestic than ever. Brought to life with theatrical tableside service, our beloved afternoon tea has been reimaged by our award-winning chefs to offer you an extraordinary dining experience.

We thus invite you to relish the timeless charm and warmth of The Georgian, where history and innovation sit together in perfect harmony.
